Lena Park Career Coaching - Methods, Packages and Negotiation Playbook (2026)

1. Our coaching packages

This guide is the internal playbook of Lena Park Career Coaching. It describes how we work with clients and what each package includes.

Interview sprint - 290 EUR. Two 60-minute sessions: positioning statement, the five most likely questions for one target role, and a mock interview with written feedback.

Job search programme - 890 EUR. Six sessions over eight weeks: target-role definition, CV and LinkedIn rewrite, application tracker, interview preparation for every live process, and offer negotiation support.

Promotion coaching - 640 EUR. Four sessions: evidence portfolio, conversation plan with the manager, and a 90-day follow-up.

Clients can cancel any package before the first session for a full refund. After the first session we refund unused sessions at 50 percent.

2. CV and positioning method

A CV is read for about 30 seconds on the first pass. The top third must answer three questions: what role does this person want, what is their strongest evidence, and why now.

Positioning statement: two sentences. Sentence one names the target role and the years of relevant experience. Sentence two names the single strongest result with a number.

Bullets: every bullet follows action, scope, result. Example: 'Rebuilt the checkout flow for 2 million monthly users, cutting drop-off by 18 percent in one quarter.'

Length: one page up to 8 years of experience, two pages after that. Remove anything older than 15 years unless it is directly relevant to the target role.

Gaps: name a career break in one line (for example 'Parental leave, 2024') rather than hiding it; hiring managers react worse to unexplained gaps than to explained ones.

3. Negotiation playbook

Most offers have room for 5 to 15 percent more in total value. Negotiate once, politely, and on the whole package rather than on base salary alone.

Anchor on the market. Before the first salary conversation, collect three data points for the role, level and city. Give a range whose bottom is your real target.

Never name the first number when you can avoid it. Ask for the budgeted range for the role. If you must answer, use your researched range.

Negotiate the package. Signing bonus, equity, start date, remote days, learning budget and title are often easier to move than base salary.

Get it in writing. Do not resign from your current job until you hold the final signed offer. Verbal offers can be withdrawn.

Timeline: ask for 3 to 5 working days to decide. Use the time to compare offers in one table: base, bonus, equity, benefits, commute and growth.
